The School has a strong tradition of providing social work education to the Tampa Bay area, the state and the nation. The BSW and MSW programs are fully accredited by the Council on Social Work Education. We have nearly 4,000 alums of the School, many who are practicing as leaders of state, regional, and local social service agencies and non-profit organizations. The School has a strong commitment to promoting social and economic justice through all of its educational programs.

In collaboration with the College of Public Health, the School of Social Work offers a dual degree program at the graduate level; the MSW/MPH. The Faculty of the School are excellent classroom instructors; many have acquired additional skills to offer foundation courses and electives as on-line offerings. Many of our Faculty are highly accomplished scholars. You can read about the research interests and priorities of the faculty under the Faculty and staff button.

The School enjoys the very strong support of the social work practice community in the Tampa Bay region. Members of our Professional Advisory Council help us to continually improve the quality of the curriculum and also provide support to the School in many other forms, including financial support for our programs.

Established in 2008, the College of Behavioral & Community Sciences is breaking new ground by combining knowledge gained through the behavioral sciences with knowledge gained from the community. Our emphasis on behavioral science reflects a focus on individuals, emphasizing behavioral research that examines the problems and challenges people encounter, as well as their need for clinical and supportive services. Our emphasis on community science reflects our commitment to understanding the larger contextual factors that have an impact on the well-being and safety of individuals and their families, such as the effectiveness of systems and policies that impact and support the well-being of individuals. We accomplish this by engaging community and neighborhood stakeholders in a partnered, participatory manner and by collaborating with local, state, and national organizations in both the public and private sectors.

The University of South Florida is a high-impact, global research university dedicated to student success. USF is classified by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching in the top tier of research universities, a distinction attained by only 2.2 percent of all universities. The Carnegie Foundation also classifies USF as a community engaged university. It is ranked 44th in total research expenditures and 38th in federal research expenditures for public universities by the National Science Foundation. The USF System has an annual budget of $1.5 billion, an annual economic impact of $4 billion, and serves 48,000 students in Tampa, St. Petersburg, and Sarasota-Manatee.
