

April 22, 2017

Graduate student Rekha Govindaraj receives Provost's Teaching Assistant Award

Rekha Govindaraj received the 2016-17 Provost's TA award in the STEM category for outstanding teaching by a Graduate TA. Rekha is a third year PhD student in the Department. Her advisors are Dr. Swaroop Ghosh (now at Penn State University) and Dr. Srinivas Katkoori. Rekha joined USF in Fall 2014, Rekha received a Bachelor of Engineering (Hons.) from Visweswaraya Technological University and a Master of Technology from Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur. Rekha worked as System on Chip design engineer with Qualcomm for two years prior to starting her graduate work at USF. Rekha has authored and co-authored several conference papers and two journal papers. She holds a US patent (US Patent 9,543,013). Rekha is a student member of National Academy of Inventors (NAI) USF chapter and Florida Gamma of Tau Beta Pi.

