Our World is Changing... Are We?

From our students to research funding to the ways higher education is financed, change is everywhere and its pace is increasing. How might a College of Engineering respond? How can faculty adjust? Using Virginia Tech as an example, we will explore the current dynamics and challenges of higher education and consider ways of adapting to the new normal.