

Meet the Mentor: Alexa

Coming to the University of South Florida as a first-generation Latina college student, I wanted to grow in every aspect of my life. ISLC gave me that confidence and reassurance to go out of my comfort zone and seek opportunities to better my future. Being a mentor gives me the opportunity to be the light in a student's life in giving them that voice and confidence to go out and seek opportunities to better themselves and leave a mark in their community.

Meet the Mentor: Amaya

I became an ISLC mentor because I want to help cultivate leadership skills within the multicultural community here at USF. Becoming a mentor gives me the joyous opportunity of passing along the blessings that God gave to me, and that is what I am most grateful for.

Meet the Mentor: Antonia

I am a 3rd year student here at the University of South Florida who hopes to pursue a career in Maternal and Fetal medicine, my interests include anything and everything where I have the opportunity to be creative! I wanted to be a mentor in order to help others learn and grow in the same ways my ISLC mentors helped me, I hope to be an advocate for those who need it as well.

Meet the Mentor: Chandler

Coming from a small town to USF has brought me more opportunities than I can imagine. My studies will prepare me to enter the fashion industry with a diverse skill set that I couldn't get anywhere else. Coming here has made me want to be more than just a student it has me wanting to inspire and lead others. I love interacting with other people of various backgrounds and ISLC gives me an opportunity to do just that.

Meet the Mentor: Jarell

I am currently studying to become a certified American Sign Language Interpreter! When I am not doing homework (which is almost never!) you can find me on campus at a meeting of the Gospel Choir at USF, the Jamaican Alliance Movement or one of the many other organizations that I am involved in. I wanted to be a mentor because I want to show people that their story matters and that change only comes through discomfort.

Meet the Mentor: Kedrine

I am a Pre-nursing major at USF! My ultimate hope is to attain my DNP degree and tackle the healthcare system, in order to combat the negative effects it has caused minorities. I currently serve as chaplain of the National Council of Negro Women inc. and community service chair for the Jamaican Alliance Movement. I am proud to be an ISLC mentor in this position, I will be able to take part in shining a light on knowing one's purpose and the importance of diversity in leadership.

Meet the Mentor: Kerouna

I play trumpet a couple of instruments and I hope to be a future health professional. I wanted to be a mentor because I hope to inspire others that may have some bumps in their road or just those wanting to know how to be more active and present on campus.

Meet the Mentor: Leigh

I wanted to be a mentor because I never felt represented. This conference gives an opportunity to every minority student who may feel the same way, to make lifelong connections and dream, believe, and achieve.

Meet the Mentor: Malek

I'm interested in helping the community, learning about other cultures, and anything that has to do with sustainability. My hobbies include working out, online gaming, and watching anime. I decided to become a mentor so that I could help awaken leadership and determination in individuals that want more for their success. Being a mentor will also grow my understanding and holistic scope of society.

Meet the Mentor: Meghar

I am a first year graduate student focused on helping all students achieve their goals. Being a mentor is important to me because I want to connect students to campus resources and help them find the leader in them.

Meet the Mentor: Neha

I did my BS in Public Health, currently pursuing my MS in Health Informatics. I like reading and painting and I am a bit of a minimalist. I wanted to be a mentor to help other students and be there to support them for their story not just be there to share mine. Go Bulls!

Meet the Mentor: Samia

My interests include of social activism, music, painting, photography, and serving as a student leader. As a woman and person of color, inclusivity is important to me. As a mentor I aim to inspire everyone to love and be the versions of themselves.

Meet the Mentor: Urvi

I became an ISLC mentor because I want to help cultivate leadership skills within the multicultural community here at USF. Becoming a mentor gives me the joyous opportunity of passing along the blessings that God gave to me, and that is what I am most grateful for.

Meet the Mentor: Will

I'm from Miami, I'm Cuban American, I love playing video games. I want to be a mentor to inspire others to become the leaders they can be.
