 Asking Open-Ended Questions
One of the ways to encourage more meaningful classroom discussions is to ask questions that require students to pause, think, and reflect. We will discuss open-ended questions and how to use them to probe for clarity and completeness, encourage creativity and critical thinking, and steer the discussion toward a desired goal.

Tuesday, May 24, 9:30-10:30
Friday, July 22, 11:00-12:00

Building a Global Citizens Assignment
Every section of every Global Citizens undergraduate course (FKL and non-FKL) must have a Global Citizens Assignment. In this workshop, we will help you understand the requirements for a Global Citizens Assignment and work to build an assignment that directly connects to your defined Global Student Learning Outcomes. Co-facilitated by Kara Fulton & Sommer Mitchell.

This workshop is applicable to both FKL General Education courses and non-general education undergraduate courses.

Wed., Jul. 20, 1:00-2:00 in SVC 2002
Thurs., Aug. 18, 10:00-11:00 in SVC 2002
