    Most seemed to support the proposal, but would like to see a different name for the school than School of Global Studies since the university already has a school with a name so close. They also wanted to make sure that by combining the three area’s (Africana Studies, ISLAC and Gov’t & International Affairs) that the smaller departments were ok with this and that the structure of the new department has the right amount of administrators and faculty.
IV. Steve Tauber, Rachel May and Cheryl Rodriguez spoke regarding the proposal of the new School of Global Studies:
    Steve, Rachel and Cheryl answered questions that the Faculty Council put forward. They also explained what they have been doing to make sure they are moving forward and that this new school will be the best for both the faculty and students. They gave some background on how this new proposal came about and what they are going to get the proposal ready to go before the Faculty Senate later in the year.

    The subcommittee includes (Nataša Jonoska, Cheryl Hall, Adriana Novoa, Christine Probes and Elizabeth Bell) Dr. Bell drafted an email to send to Kofi Glover requesting an extension on the deadline for the revised T&P document for CAS and the subcommittee approved it. They will also ask the Chairs to speak about the revised T&P document in their first meeting in the fall. They are looking at a 2 step process for the voting. One after the Town Halls which will give the T&P Committee an opportunity to review responses and revise the document before the actual faculty vote and then the actual vote. The Faculty Council agreed to for the subcommittee and Dr. Bell to send the email requesting the extension to Dr. Glover.

Phil Porter gave a report on his findings when he contacted the Library committee pertaining to the handling of possible discontinuing of some journals. He found that the Library committee is working with the Library and they are not cutting any journals at this time. Hopefully funds will be available in the future to cover the journals if it seems they could be discontinued.

New Business:
