

Bachelor of Arts in Communication

Communication studies offers instruction in a wide range of communication studies. Students who study in the division can prepare for diverse careers in a variety of professions including business and government, law, teaching, medical field, and ministry. Recent graduates are employed in a variety of careers that include politics, real estate, nonprofit, ministry, law, and teaching at high school and college levels.

Entry-Level Positions

Correspondent

Film and Video Editor

Management Consultant

Medical Administrators

Social and Human Service Assistant

Publicist

Public Relations Specialist

Research Specialist

Sales Representative

Training and Development Manager

Curriculum Information

Communication Eight Semester Plan

Positions with a Graduate Degree

Arbitrator

Communications Teachers, Postsecondary

Lawyer

Professional Organizations and Related Resources

American Society of Newspaper Editors

The Association for Women in Communications

Health and Science Communication

Association

International Association of Business

Communicators

National Communication Association

Where else can I find information on this major?

Occupational Outlook Handbook

O*Net Online

USF Career Services