NOTABLE RECOGNITIONS:

According to Harzing's Publish or Perish, as of 05/23/2023, I have the following citation statistics: articles/chapters 164, citations 10,552, citations/year 278, citations/article 64.3, h-index 58, 10-index 111.

According to Ioannidis, et al. (2019, PLOS – Biology), I was listed among the “most influential” criminologists in the world over my career. Out of 6,880,389 scholars worldwide across 22 fields and 176 subfields, I was among the approximately 105,000 identified as the most influential, 269 of whom were other criminologists. This placed me in the top 1.5 percent (98th percentile) of all scholars across all disciplines worldwide. This was also the case for Ioannidis' subsequent analyses with more current data.

According to Research.com (12/2022) I am listed as among the world's “Best Scientists” with a D-index (disciplinary H-index) “above the predetermined threshold (usually 30 or 40).” Ranked #88.

According to diamScience in the areas of criminology/penology and sociology, my total area scores are 48.39 and 17.85, respectively for a total area score of 66.24; my total article impact scores are 43.83 and 17.66, respectively for a total article impact score of 61.49.

According to Research Gate, my average weekly score has consistently been around 33 and is higher than 90% of Research Gate members; my RG “total impact” is 95.63.

According to Cohn, E. G., D. P. Farrington, and J. R. Sorensen (2000). “Journal Publications of Ph. D. Graduates from American Criminology and Criminal Justice Programs.” Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 11(1): 35-49, my average annual rate of publication (4.00 total publications, 3.56 peer-reviewed journal articles) placed me in the 95th percentile nationally and qualified me as a “publication star.”

According to Stack, S. (2001). “The Effect of Field of Terminal Degree on Scholarly Productivity: An Analysis of Criminal Justice Faculty.” Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 12 (1): 19-34, I was identified as one of the “ten most cited authors, M.A.-Level Criminal Justice Departments, 1988-2000.”

According to Kleck, G., S-Y K Wang, and J. Tark (2007). “Article Productivity among the Faculty of Criminology and Criminal Justice Doctoral Programs, 2000-2005.” Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 18(3): 385-405, I was identified as the department's “publication star.”

According to Jennings, W. G., C. L. Gibson, J. T. Ward, and K. M. Beaver (2008). "Which Group Are You In? A Preliminary Investigation of Group-Based Publication Trajectories of Criminology and Criminal Justice Scholars." Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 19(2): 227- 250, my publication rate during my tenure-earning years placed me into "G3" (the most prolific, "rising star," and top 5% of all criminologists with doctorates earned before 2000).

According to Jennings, W. G., C. J. Schreck, M. Sturtz, and M. Mahoney (2008). "Exploring the Scholarly Output of Academic Organization Leadership in Criminology and Criminal Justice: A Research Note on Publication Productivity." Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 19(3): 404-416, I have published in six of the seven "elite journals" of the discipline and have an annual "elite journal publication rate" of .95.

"Article Productivity among the Faculty of Criminology and Criminal Justice Doctoral Programs, 2005-2009." Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 22(1): 43-66, I was identified as the department's publishing "superstar;" when my scholarly productivity was removed from the analysis, the department's national ranking dropped from 8th to 14th. I accounted for 33 of the department's 101 publications during the time-frame examined.

According to Orrick, Erin A. and H. Weir (2011). "The Most Prolific Sole and Lead Authors in Elite Criminology and Criminal Justice Journals, 2000-2009." Journal of Criminal Justice Education, 22(1): 24-42, I am among the top 80 (tied 54th) of the most prolific sole and lead authors in elite criminology and criminal justice journals, 2000-2009 in the discipline.
