

The Summer Research Institute at the Louis de la Parte Florida Mental Health Institute (SRI@FMHI)

Behavioral health disorders, including mental and addictive disorders, are among the leading causes of disability world-wide. The Louis de la Parte Florida Mental Health Institute (FMHI) conducts research on mental illness, substance use, health care financing, disability law, juvenile justice, involuntary commitment, child abuse, developmental disabilities, and other pressing social issues. FMHI has established the Summer Research Institute (SRI) as a research experience for student-scholars interested in conducting research and to help them prepare for graduate school, medical school, law school or Senior Thesis. Although geared toward behavioral health issues, the research methodologies studied apply to a wide range of social science disciplines.

Program Structure

The undergraduate SRI is funded by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. This year's SRI began virtually in late May 2021 and culminates with today's Research Day after 6-weeks of intense in-person instruction. Each scholar was matched with a faculty mentor with whom he or she conducted his or her research study. In addition, scholars participated in a variety of activities coordinated by the SRI core faculty: a substantive seminar series on research design, methods and process; a proseminar series on ethics, graduate schools and funding/publication; a skills workshop series exploring areas such as analytic tools, speaking/presentation skills and writing; and finally a broad array of community field experiences. In addition to the presentations offered today, each scholar has written a research report describing his or her work and is encouraged to submit the completed paper for consideration at an Undergraduate Research Symposium as well as regional and national conferences. Many papers will also be redrafted for submission to scholarly research journals.
