People who dream of launching their own business or sharpening their entrepreneurial ideas often have big ideas. But they need to know how to bring those ideas to market and to land the capital to finance the venture.

The MS in Entrepreneurship and Applied Technologies is a graduate program that includes coursework on new product and service creation, strategy, financing, opportunity identification, technology translation, and more — all with an emphasis on sustainability and social responsibility. For those who are already engaged in new product or service creation, the program provides the training skills, and knowledge effective leaders and innovators need.

The program isn’t just for those who want to start a new business, however. For those who want to advance their career in an established business, the program fosters the kind of thinking that intrapreneurs — people who think like entrepreneurs but work for traditional businesses — need to thrive. Students leave with an innovator’s mindset and know how to effectively communicate their ideas.

"This program has engaged and empowered me to seek out opportunities and given me the keys to success in my endeavors. With its integrative approach to entrepreneurship and my focus in technology, medicine and business, I will have the know-how to become a successful businessman."

- Jerry Trotter, Medical Student

About the Program

This 30 credit-hour interdisciplinary program includes 15 credit hours of required core curricula to help students recognize and evaluate opportunities. Those courses include training in new venture creation, venture financing, technology and market assessment, technology commercialization, and interdisciplinary team leadership. Students take 15 credit hours in elective courses. Electives vary based on the student’s career goals and range from courses in global entrepreneurship to biotechnology to intellectual property.

The MS in Entrepreneurship and Applied Technologies may, with prior approval, be taken in conjunction with the MBA or other MS programs, allowing students to earn two degrees. Students frequently opt to pursue MS degrees in other colleges, particularly in areas such as engineering, biotechnology, and medicine, while earning the MBA and MS in Entrepreneurship and Applied Technologies.
Entrepreneurship is a key driver of our economy. Particularly because the majority of jobs that are created in the United States come from small businesses started by entrepreneurially minded individuals. Our program teaches students to be flexible, resilient, creative, empathetic, and have the ability to recognize and seize opportunities.
