Welcome to the 2018 USF World Annual Report!

It seems every year I recognize the remarkable USF community in these comments, and in 2018 our faculty, staff, and students immersed themselves in another year of profound global learning, translational international research, and all forms of academic scholarship with partners from around the globe. In early 2019, USF received the Institute of International Education Andrew Heiskell Award for Innovation in International Education for Equity and Access. Then USF was announced as the third-ranked university in the United States for Peace Corps Graduate Programs. Finally, for the second time in three years, USF was ranked number one in the United States for Fulbright Faculty Scholars. USF World is proud to support the work of the USF faculty, staff, and students but these accolades belong to our whole community. USF World is honored to work across the whole institution as together we expand and enlarge the global engagement of our extraordinary university.

I hope you enjoy reading the 2018 USF World Annual Report. Each year this document takes on a new personality. Last year we adopted bright and bold photography and emphasized more infographics, and such was the positive feedback that we are pleased to continue this approach. In addition, we have extended our focus on the USF community through a series of spotlight stories that share the powerful work of students, faculty, staff, and alumni. Finally, this will be the last USF World annual report under the leadership of President Judy Genshaft. Today, USF faculty, staff, and students conduct research and study in 114 countries while welcoming students from another 147 countries to study at USF. We were so pleased to be able to celebrate President Genshaft and her husband, Steve Greenbaum, at our annual awards breakfast in November. Her unwavering and unflinching commitment to establishing USF as a globally renowned university over the past 19 years cannot be overestimated. Thank you, President Genshaft.

Students studied abroad during 2017-18

- 2,105 Students
- 78 Countries
Studying abroad has been the most fulfilling college experience during my time here at USF. Being able to directly engage with international communities has provided me with a newfound respect for other cultures and perspectives. Now that I have returned, I realize the significance of studying abroad was to equip me with essential skills that can translate across my personal and professional endeavors. It is these skills that have fostered me to become a better researcher, student, and overall, a better individual.

The USF Education Abroad Office spent every week hosting or attending events including the Diversity Series, study abroad fairs, funding sessions, and Bull Market.

In Fall 2018, Education Abroad received a grant from the Council on International Education Exchange (CIEE) to pay the passports fees for 175 USF students at the Passport Caravan event.

Once offered during the summer, the popular USF Belize Communication and Education program transitioned into a Complementary Embedded Experience (CEE) format for 2018-2019. CEEs are short-term international experiences embedded in multiple courses around an interdisciplinary theme. Students enrolled in CEEs courses have the option of traveling abroad and connecting course material to an international experience while sharing that experience with students from different majors and programs.

The students, led by Dr. Steven Surrency, will build upon their spring courses by spending their spring break in Belize. “A CEE program allows students to get the most out of a shorter, embedded experience,” explained Surrency. “Students from multiple perspectives can learn from one another as they explore multiple dimensions of this one place.”

The students are enrolled in spring courses such as Language Science in Communication Sciences and Disorders and Advanced American Sign Language and will participate in a week-long series of workshops, classroom activities, and service projects that support the local Deaf community in Belize. Surrency confirms this program allows students from various academic disciplines to use their spring courses as a foundation to collaborate and solve real-world problems. “Our Belize trip provides a rich cultural and linguistic experience for students from many backgrounds, and our work with Deaf people and those with communication disorders in Belize encompass problem-solving in areas related to language, culture, education, and social work.”
The GloBull Ambassador Program offers students who have completed a study abroad experience the opportunity to connect with peers about the benefits of study abroad. Education Abroad’s popular Diversity Series was envisioned, designed, and implemented by student GloBull Ambassadors.

Bisma Balouch, class of 2019, is pursuing dual majors in finance and business analytics and information systems. Originally from Pakistan, Balouch began her studies in August 2015 as a part of the INTO USF Pathway Program. She was the first female in her family to get an education in the United States. “I’m glad I came to USF because it opened countless opportunities for me and provided me support through its resources on campus. The amazing staff and faculty always make USF feel like home.” Balouch’s favorite part about living in the states and attending USF is the diversity.

Currently interning at Raymond James, Balouch hopes to become a business analyst after graduation. “My experiences here at USF have taught me to be confident and believe in myself. My professors and peers have entrusted their faith in me and provided me with endless support to achieve my goals.”

Programming for International Students

Wednesdays with World

A monthly international coffee hour program designed to create a space for cultural exchange between international students, scholars, faculty, staff, and other members of the USF community.

Scholar Adventure Trips

Adventure trips are a way for international students and scholars to explore Florida’s unique culture beyond campus and the Tampa Bay area. Bioluminescent comb jelly kayaking and experiencing the manatees at Blue Spring State Park were highlights in 2018.

GloBull Games Series

International students and scholars have the opportunity to attend sporting events with their peers, learn USF traditions related to athletics, and celebrate our international student athletes. In 2018, American football was one of several sports added to the series.
12 USF students, accompanied by USF International Services staff, attended the 2018 Florida International Leadership Conference (FILC) where international and study abroad students from all over the state get to meet one another, network at a professional conference, share educational experiences, and promote global education. The FILC Chair and Registrar were proud staff members of USF International Services.
Each November, USF World celebrates International Education Month. A signature event is the Office of Multicultural Affairs’ International Festival which transforms the MLK Lawn into four different regions of the world. With more than 150 student groups and organizations in participation, the festival hosts informational booths and food, music, and novelties relevant to the cultures found in each region. Each year, the festival is kicked-off by the “Parade of Flags” led by USF’s Herd of Thunder and continues throughout the afternoon providing students with an opportunity to experience new cultures and develop connections with peers outside the classroom.
