Steven A. Cook is the Eni Enrico Mattei senior fellow for Middle East studies at the Council of Foreign Relations. He received his undergraduate degree in International Studies from Vassar College, a Master’s in International Affairs at Johns Hopkins University, and a PhD in Political Science from the University of Pennsylvania.

“In False Dawn, you meet the characters and ideas that fueled the fast moving events of the Arab Spring. Steven Cook serves as a deft guide to helping you understand the factors that ground it to a halt.”

Host of Charlie Rose and CBS This Morning

“Steven Cook’s excellent book opens with a quote from Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarak in 2001 that seemed like a threat at the time but now reads more like a prophecy. ‘The youth who called for change and reform will be the first to suffer.’ Cook tells us why.”
