Dr. Graham Allison is the Douglas Dillon Professor of Government at Harvard Kennedy School and the former Director of Harvard’s Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs from 1995 until July 2017. As Assistant Secretary of Defense in the first Clinton Administration, he received the Defense Department’s highest civilian award. A “Founding Dean” of the modern Kennedy School at Harvard, he has served as a member of the Defense Policy Board for eight Secretaries and currently serves on the Advisory boards of the Secretary of State, Secretary of Defense, and the Director of the CIA.

“Thucydide’s Trap identifies a cardinal challenge to world order: the impact of a rising power on a ruling power. I read the book with great interest. I can only hope that the US-China relationship becomes the fifth case to resolve itself peacefully, rather than the thirteenth to result in war.”

Henry Kissinger
Former US Secretary of State

“One of the most insightful and thought-provoking books I have ever read on the most important relationship in the world, the US and China. If Graham Allison is right—and I think he is—China and the US must heed the lessons in this superb study in order to avoid a war which neither side would win.”

General (Ret.) David Petraeus
Chairman of the IKR Global Institute, Former Director of the CIA, and Former Commander of the US Central Command
